INTRODUCTION

The attached pages represent a third expansion and revision of an "annotated bibliography," directed toward assisting individuals and agencies to meet the needs of migratory agricultural children and youth. The Migrant Education Center of Florida Atlantic University has been able to accumulate some fifty thousand individual and multiple copies of articles, periodicals, pamphlets, brochures, books, films, and kineo or audio tapes, as well as curriculum aids and research data described herein. More importantly, as of this printing, more than twenty-five thousand of these items have been distributed in Florida and throughout the United States and this figure increases daily.

While this compilation of materials is directed to and intended for those serving within the broad educational areas of the Florida Migratory Child Compensatory Program, it should be pointed out that much of the following described information is applicable to other segments of the "disadvantaged" population and, in most cases, can be used for many purposes or age groups. In addition, many materials are applicable to societal segments divergent from those for which it is initially intended. Further expansions and additions to this product will be forthcoming as the result of new production of materials, further research findings, and recommendations from those who are using these materials "in the field."

The following pages are the result of concerted effort on the part of many people. In addition to those whose efforts are credited on the title page, appreciation is expressed to total secretarial and graduate and undergraduate student staff of the Migrant Education Center. Also to be lauded are the efforts of in-service professional and para-professional personnel who have produced through various in-service activities and projects many of the materials included in this bibliography. Without the efforts and contributions of these individuals, the following compilation would not have been possible.

It is sincerely hoped that those who use the following annotated materials will continue to evaluate them and to make recommendations for additions to this collection of any new materials, produced or discovered. As such cooperative effort is forthcoming, these materials will be made more useful and up-to-date for those persons to whom this product is directed. All concerned individuals and agencies are encouraged to contribute to, partake of, or participate in the services of the Migrant Education Center to the end that migratory children and youth may be provided a more meaningful and comprehensive educational program in Florida and throughout the nation.
